The world is progressing at an astonishing rate riding the crest of IT revolution. The management theory and practices are changing dimensions and becoming more sharp and practical to maintain relevance. The nations are transforming into knowledge economy. The flow of data and information has been rampant and excessive dealing with information overload and making it useful for decision making process is a significant task. All the organizations in the world from different lines of activities are trying to gain competitive edges through strengthening research and development activity.

On this note as the Host and the facilitator of this International Conference, Dr D Henry, Director MGMIMSR expressed “We would like to provide the platform for the research scholars to do better research and to present and discuss issues in the relevant fields. We hope this conference will become the platform for constructive dialogue on recent trends and innovative approaches for sustainable growth among policy-makers, academic community, and representatives of the private sector”.
